The Ku-Klux.

If it be the paramount duty of Government to protect the citizen in his life liberty and enjoyment of his property, then Congress should not adjourn before adopting measures to check the violence and repress the outrages now so fearfully prevalent in the Southern States. Let no one who is the old story, the old story argument in justification of martial law. We take the word of the whole South in proof and testimony of the deeds of darkness and crime now casting a gloom over their society and their business.

The Courier-Journal, of Louisville, the oldest Democratic organ of the Southwest, exposes these outrages and denounces this roving band of marauders and robbers in the strongest terms. It confesses that "no home is safe, no place sacred from their invasions."

The local State governments are utterly unable to cope with these villains. The journal says "they carry their lawless violence to the very doors of the legislature."

The charges of Judge Pryor, of the Frankfort Circuit (and of course an orthodox Democrat of the Kentucky school), to the Grand Jury more than confirm all that has ever been said in Congress or elsewhere about the Ku-Klux. After commenting upon the outrage perpetrated with impunity almost under the eyes of the Court in the release of Borgess, charged with the murder of a negro from the Frankfort jail, Judge Pryor says:

"If these secret, masked courts are to be held, and men taken from the courts and taken to the courts, and taken to the risk of the lives of all who resist them, we had as well turn down our temples of justice and place them in the hands of robbers in their hands. What protection can a man have at his home in town or country who, by word or action, has brought the wrath of these courts upon him? At the hour of midnight, they are as armed and as ready to take him from his home and hang him to the first limb that comes in their way as they are at any other time. This is a state of things which is a disgrace to this State. I am not conscientious of a single instance in my district where men, indicted for crime, have been punished when proven guilty. This is a state of things which is a disgrace to this State. I am not conscientious of a single instance in my district where men, indicted for crime, have been punished when proven guilty. This is a state of things which is a disgrace to this State.

I am not conscientious of a single instance in my district where men, change in the law of evidence would, in my opinion, not only make judges from the pains and penalties with which they are threatened, but would secure the citizens, white and black, in all their rights under the law, and at once (it is extended) all conflict between the Federal and State Courts on this subject.

Governor Scott, of South Carolina, says since the 19th of October, 1870, there has been a Judge of Probate and eleven others killed, fifty maimed, and one hundred fifty driven from their homes in one county alone, as well as many outrages in other counties.

General Butler, in the House on Tuesday, said that only one of these outrages occurred on the 19th of October, and that the rest occurred on the 19th of A letter just received from Puerto Plata, dated March 6th, says: The San Do-

Christo, yesterday, accompanied by Baez and officials. The belief in Puerto Plata is that the annexation scheme will be carried out, notwithstanding the strong party opposition to Baez. Threats have been made to burn the town if it is annexed, and already two houses have been set on fire. Guards constantly patrol the town at night. The patriots of Cuba predict a general revolution, and there is much excitement in the island.

It is reported that the expedition of Baez is critical. The annexation party, however, remain firm.

The House of Representatives held a caucus yesterday, continuing three hours. A pri-

Blaine was read, in which the President expressed his regret that the President was unable to be present, and suggested that some kind of measures be adopted for the protection of Southern loyalists, without going into further legis-on the subject, but no conclusion was reached. The House adjourned until towas found on Jersey Flats, met again at nine o'clock yesterday morning, in a vac-posited in a rough wooden box, subject to examination. Several witnesses were examined. Mr. O'Neil testified that Mrs.

Armstrong worked for her last summer, and swore positively that the deceased was Mrs. Armstrong. Timothy Lynch also testified that the body strongly resembled Mrs. Armstrong. S. Collins corroborated this testimony. Mary A. Gardner testified that she knew it was not Mrs. Armstrong, because the whole of Mrs. Armstrong's upper teeth were gone, and deceased had one or two left. The jury then adjourned to meet again at two o'clock, and orders were given by Justice Potts to have the body interred. The Justice telegraphed to the Chief of Police in Buffalo, to inquire at the residence of Mrs. Armstrong in that city, whether Mrs. Armstrong was still there. About three o'clock he received a reply that she was alive. The jury then proceeded to the office of B. S. McMillan and rendered a verdict "that the deceased came to her death from some cause to the jurors unknown." Most of the jury were of opinion that the deceased had been the victim of violence, but having no positive evidence of the fact, they rendered the above verdict. The public would certainly have been better satisfied had they made some stronger effort to identify the body.Since writing the above we learn that two women, one of whom greatly resembled deceased both in features and dress, entered a restaurant early in the winter, followed by four railroad laborers. The woman who resembled deceased bridled the men for following her, and threatened to cut the heart out of one of the most abusive if, when they left the restaurant, they were followed any further. The women were both from Chicago; said they were bound down the Creek, and had been confined in the look-up for one night as they were too poor to pay for lodgings.
Officer McGraw states that he conversed with one of the women in the look-up. She said she had left her husband, and was a policeman in Chicago, and from her dress and features she thinks that the strongly resembled deceased. There are

CHAMBERS DICKENS.

The Opera House, last evening, attracted a select but not a large audience. There have been many large assemblages, but none more cultivated, appreciative and sympathetic. The subject of the lecture was Charles Dickens. The lecturer, Miss Field, was richly attired in blue silk, with a heavy collar of a rich lace overdress. A breast knot of flowers, a rose in her luxuriant hair, and the red cover of the book from which she read giving the necessary points of deep color to the cool blue and white. Miss Field possessed the most excellent thing in woman, a voice of exceeding sweetness; her modulations so entirely under her control that it swelled in its fullness, and and its low tremulous dying, the in-imation of pathos. When warming with her subject, she indulged in gesticulation, while her motions were graceful and correct. She has the rare accomplishment of standing well; her pose is natural, graceful, dignified and serene; her figure is beautiful, and her face animated and active. Her lecture was a success.She proved that the capabilities of uneducated, for a human being; and that shows a generous nature and a warm, brave heart, better than any elaborate criticism, or weighing of the oval against the good. The lecture was full of bright points and the close was both eloquent and touching. The following is a brief sketch:Alluding to Dickens' readings and his dramatic power, she said that "Dickens" was a name which was a name to be remembered. Declaring that Dickens was not only a great genius, but a double barrel Colt's Revolver for the family, afford them a comfortable subsistence.The UNKNOWN-DEAD WOMAN.—The Letter from Oil City.

Oil City, March 7.

A constant reader of the HERALD from its commencement, I have just finished perusing your admirable MONTHLY PETROLEUM REPORT for February, complete in every detail.
I cannot express to you the great benefit upon its preparation and the valuable statistical facts it contains. The report of the petroleum development, and the general business details of the same as gathered by you from month to month, is not appreciated so fully as it merits. It is the current history of a business only third in commercial importance among all the mineral products of the world. And the time is not far distant when its reliable statistics will be invaluable to the compilers of the history of our nation's wealth, and the comprehensive form in which it is presented to your readers, is alike creditable to first-class journalism and to the great petroleum development which the HERALD represents.Since my last projected city has been an assured fact. The charter was passed upon its preparation and the
statistics will be invaluable to the compilers of the history of our nation's wealth,
HERALD represents.GOOD THING A CITY IS!
And our citizens have awakened to a sense of the importance of choosing the very best man to fill the office of Mayor, created by the new charter. A man, signed by a number of our principal citizens, has been made.W. M. WILLIAMS, ESQ., soliciting him to become the people's candidate for the office, and Mr. Williams has yielded to the wishes of his numerous friends, and conditionally accepted. A brief sketch of this gentleman may not be amiss. Previous to settling in Oil City he was a resident of California. To connection with his brother, L. H. Williams, senior member of the firm of L. H.
Williams & Co., druggists, of Oil City, he was engaged in mercantile business at Mariposa, California, and was highly successful. He afterwards became established in mercantile business in this place, being among the chief sufferers by our great fire in 1868, he turned his attention to Petroleum development, and has been since engaged in that business chiefly. A gentleman of sterling integrity, successful in his business, and deservingly popular, a better selection could not have been made.
His election will be a credit to our city.A call has also been made to the firm of Reynolds, Brodhead & Co., of the firm of Reynolds, Brodhead & Co., who are candidates for the office. Mr.
Reynolds, like Mr. Williams, has ever been connected with the petroleum business of Oil City, and aided in no small degree in building it up. He is a shrewd business man, possesses large vested interests here, and is well qualified for the position in all general respects. These are the two prominent candidates for the honorable position, and both have numerous friends; both are also Republicans.Several wells in the new East Sandy Oil field will be ready to test during the coming week, and I anticipate favorable results. I wish to inform the citizens of Titusville that he has not got the Downer oil, and never bought any from our works in Corry. In order to satisfy my general manager Mr. C. A. Murdoch, general manager Corry Petroleum Oil Works, at Corry, asking him if he ever sold James Rice, of Titusville, any oil.
His reply to me was as follows:We never sold James Rice, of Titusville, any oil. Mr. Wilber Rice, the son of James Rice, called on me about two weeks ago, and wished to buy some Downer oil. I asked him what he wanted it for; he said to sell by the gallon in Titusville. I gave him to understand we would not sell to any one but Mr. Charles R. Church, our retail agent; and there you will find the genuine Downer oil. I have a sample of Mr.
Rice's so-called Downer oil, and am satisfied it is not our oil.O. P. PHILLIPS.
I will, for the above, at a few days.LOCAL NOTICES.
